THE TIFFANY & CO. FOUNDATION AWARDS GRANTS TOTALLING $3 MILLION FOR THE GREENING OF LOWER MANHATTAN

New York, NY (October 10, 2007) – Earlier this year The Tiffany & Co. Foundation awarded grants to three environmental organizations, each of whom received a $1 million grant to revitalize the waterfront and parks in Lower Manhattan.

“In supporting these organizations, we help to create a green space in an urban environment that will serve all who live and work in Lower Manhattan and the millions of tourists who annually visit this historic area,” said Fernanda Kellogg, president of The Tiffany & Co. Foundation.

The three recipients will use the Foundation grants to further specific goals, as follows:

The Battery Conservancy will create the Tiffany Woodland Garden that will contribute to the sustainability of the park’s landscape and reflect the imaginative nature of “SeaGlass, Carousel at the Battery,” an innovative ride featuring sea creatures that dive and glide beneath a nautilus-shaped pavilion.

The National Parks of New York Harbor Conservancy's grant will fund the “Campaign for New York Harbor,” to provide seamless access to our waterfront parks, historic and cultural destinations and enliven unheralded national park sites that call the harbor home.

Friends of the High Line, a nonprofit organization founded in 1999, is dedicated to the preservation and reuse of the High Line, a 1.5-mile-long elevated railway that runs along the West Side of Manhattan. The grant will support the construction of the Chelsea Grasslands, a planting feature created by Dutch designer Piet Oudolf.

Established in 2000, The Tiffany & Co. Foundation provides grants to nonprofit organizations dedicated to the education and preservation of the arts and environmental conservation. The Foundation awards grants to institutions that preserve traditional artisanship. Support is also given to cultural institutions that foster the decorative arts. In addition, the Foundation assists organizations dedicated to conservation of natural resources from which the company draws the materials and inspiration that are at the heart of Tiffany design.
